

EXPLORING PERSPECTIVES

THERE ARE MULTIPLE PERSPECTIVES TO EVERY STORY...

Discuss and explore the importance of perspective using these outstanding picture books by Kate Temple, Jol Temple and Terri Rose Baynton.

This activity is designed to accompany either Room on our Rock OR Move that Mountain. As a class, explore the importance of perspective by reading either book from front to back and then back to front. Focus on how language is crucial when looking at a challenge or issue from different perspectives. Following the format of the books, students will then create a story board that demonstrates two sides of a story.

TWO SIDES TO EVERY STORY

Take notes after each reading of the book. What do you notice?
Then, compare both readings. Why is it important to have two sides to a story?

First Reading - Front to Back

What do you notice?

Second Reading - Back to Front

What do you notice?

CHOOSE YOUR PERSPECTIVE!

Choose a local or global issue that you are passionate about. Write two stories exploring two different perspectives on the same issue.
First fill in the brainstorming template below and then complete the story boards on the next page.

What is an issue that you are passionate about? Why?

So what would happen if others didn't help support this issue?

Now what can people do to help support this issue?
